A Prediction that the Ticket Will Win a Majority of at Least Seven—The Democratic Organization—The Legislative Contests Under Part of Their Control—Reform Talked In the Ohio Democratic Congressional Convention—Notes for the Illinois Legislature—Other Political Affairs.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—The delegates to the Democratic State Convention all left town, and the enthusiastic manner of the Ohio Democracy. Those who went home to-day are confident of the success of the Democratic party throughout the State this fall. Chairman Neal, of the State Committee, said: "Democrats are going into this fight with a determination to win, and I believe we will succeed. Democrats are more harmonious than they have been for years, and the Democratic party is in better condition than it has been for years. The Democrats are going to work in every county in the State, and I believe we will carry the State by a majority of at least 30,000. The Democratic party is in favor of reform in the tariff, and we will make that the issue in the campaign. We are in favor of a reduction of the tariff, and we will make that the issue in the campaign. We are in favor of a reduction of the tariff, and we will make that the issue in the campaign. We are in favor of a reduction of the tariff, and we will make that the issue in the campaign."

Another Democratic leader said: "The Democratic party is

Hubbard of Shelby County; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Byron G. Elliott of Marion; Clerk of Supreme Court, W. L. Ridle of Wayne County; Superintendent of Public Instruction, S. C. La Follette of Posey.

The money market was free without material change in the rates. Sterling bills were steady and in fair supply. Investment securities were very dull. The New York stock market was quiet and strong.—The Chicago produce markets were generally higher, big products advancing on an active local speculative demand, and wheat on an important loss to the English outlook. The shipping movement was light, owing to a scarcity of vessel room, and rates were about 1¢ cent better. At Liverpool wheat futures were 1¼ cent higher, corn ¼ cent higher, cotton ¼ cent higher, meal 6d higher, lard 3d cent lower, with hogs and hog products unchanged.

AT LARGE.

According to a familiar proverb, Greetings, to be appreciated, must take them Right. The person, if correct, and considerate in the case with with. It has been the custom of Illinois Republican State conventions, that out of mind, to put on a few State Central Committeemen at large, and its methodique of unexplored and wrought to such the public and does ever heard against the practice, but now that a new departure has been taken and the membership of that committee confined to one from each Congressional district, there is a very general, not to say enthusiastic, approval of the change as a part the political reform.

The subject is worthy of more than passing notice for the reason that the act would, was driven out and slighted, and, notwithstanding the general satisfaction which was given by the change, there is no small danger of a return to the old way. Indeed, nothing but the vigorous administration of the committee prevented a sudden lobby made to take the back track to the subject of non-representation at large, just to please the gentlemen from Kansas, who was added to the list two years ago, and that, by the way, to the sudden of the Hamilton Club's leader of the reform movement for the State. Before the matter is relegated to the limbo of forgone politic machinery should feature itself as emphatically that all thought of making what has been done will be abandoned and district representation be fully established. It will be time enough to talk about electing two members of the committee at large, one for each United States Senator, when fully assured that the old act a dead and not merely a case of suspended animation.

It is no unusual thing for the family of a college to reside in another profession, to-wit: from duty, but mindful of the bond of association partly in recognition of past services and partly that its counsels may be available and the light of long experience be utilized. Republican bodies often sustain members who simply accidentally the same relation to their associates and the ideas from which they have dated. The same general idea was the germ of the committee duty at large. There are in Illinois today some Republicans in the full possession of their mental faculties who were counted leaders in the silver of the party, and it would be greatly for the public interest if their experience could be utilized in the higher issues of current politics. But the feedback is to the control of the soldiers, and the old idea has been so completely abandoned that the given gentleman's head of this city and the same relation to Springfield Wednesday failed to sustain a single vote coming up to the requirement, which it is to John W. Bunn, who simply bears a good deal above the mere exaltation of politics. Yet it is not any fair to the disparagement of the others, but not one of them all would be a present claim either from experience or with opportunities. The practice has come to be to honor the label as a reward for activity in local politics. For the most part the persons nominated Wednesday as committeemen-at-large are men of good repute, some of them of quite high standing, but the very silence of disposition and disposition was marked when W. E. Dodd, a Fifth Ward wonder, was placed on the list, and it is no more secret that he received more votes than any other man coming there at. If the system has done but one of the most commendable character that one must be enough to justify the action of the convention. The candidates had under the duty every campaign that to bear their political fortunes to such disposition by keeping. It is high time to call a halt on the promotion to places of trust and honor of a man of that stamp, and it does really honorable gentlemen but to suffer their being found in company with him there along they should refuse that there have been a good many good Trays before their day, and the least it is to assess action.

For the most elevated of the selection made last Wednesday stand out more as a side-track to stopping the tide of thought from the central proposition that the selection of district representation must be the liberty and freely upheld henceforth, and it necessary fought for and made distinctive. Hamilton may hail the evening of the gentlemanly politician, but he has clear grit and will be upheld by the party to maintain the position he has taken. It a fight does come up two years hence, as threatened, there should be no backing down. Those to action with the least misgings of these two Committee business have united with a growing conviction the development of his forces, but now the storm has been met and overcome, and the victory is complete. The Republicans of Illinois will be found in the ranks of the party,

A Lively Debate in the House of Commons During Which Several Members Are Brought to Task by the Speaker—Secretary Forgarty Accepts the Compensation Offered by the Parnell—General Foreign News.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—In the House of Commons today Mr. Balfour moved the rejection of Mr. Sexton's amendment to the address. He criticised the conduct of Parnell and the members of both Irish factions in the house during recent parliamentary investigations.

Mr. Sexton, interrupting, demanded the "instant prolonging" of the session. He said it was impossible to take Mr. Balfour seriously. Mr. Sexton as a serious gentleman declared the latter accused him unjust to associate them in crime. He added that the charges had been in favor of a separate Parliament, and was prosecution to discuss Parnell's former views concerning social order in Ireland when the Crimes bill was passed, saying that the amendment referred to further questions and not to Ireland generally. Mr. Sexton denied that the house was justified in promulgating a question which was about to form the subject of a speech by the leader of the opposition. He asserted absolutely that Conservatives originated the riots, which, he said, were the legacy of landlord's misgovernment, which, he declared from Cromwell to Balfour, [illegible] the Land Act. PERSONAL.

J. W. McCullough, St. Louis, is at the Grand.

Benjamin F. Tyler, Boston, and Mr. Whitney, New Haven, Conn., are at the Palmer.

Senator William B. Allison, Iowa; Judge Francis Adams, Baltimore, etc.; H. W. Bradley, Trustee of the Chester Penitentiary; S. J. Baldwin, Wyandotte, and Reverend George Washburn, Pa., are at the Pacific.

IN GENERAL.

The Rev. James Russell Lowell has promised, in person before the Union League Club [illegible].

The Rector, Michael McMahon, whose arrest on a charge of larceny was mentioned yesterday, does not work for Wheeler & Co. of Rock Island alone, and for Wheeler & Co. of Port Byron.

David G. Hay, the clerk of Ole S. Young, grocer, who paid $600 worth of gold watches and one ring to Minnesota, has arrested the two Jones brothers. He served supplementary and was held to the Criminal Court under $1,000.

The temperature yesterday, as observed by Hannan, optician, Tribune Building, was at 7 o'clock: 8 a. m., 68°; 9 a. m., 67°; 10 a. m., 67°; 11 a. m., 67°; 12 m., 67°; 1 p. m., 67°; 2 p. m., 67°; 3 p. m., 67°. Barometer, 7 a. m., 30.11; 3 p. m., 30.12.

It is claimed that Lena Jackson, the prizefighter charged with entering Jones's grocery during a fit for work, meant to break and take all the goods here from the store. It is hoped that he can get his business in the dock and quit the ring.

Fifty certificates are nearly taken without question. A succession of the 250 certificates of the series of 1886 has been impressed in Ohio. It is now thought possible, though a great many certificates have been returned, as the error certificates are not an exact duplicate of the genuine ones.

It has been found impossible to complete the repairs on the tabernacle of Mr. Moody and Sankey in time to allow it to be opened by Sunday next. Workmen are now at work always, however, that there is no doubt that it will be ready for the evening service. The tabernacle will accommodate 10,000 persons.

A joint session of the Northwestern and Western managers of the cooperative cracker manufacturers' association was held at the Grand Pacific yesterday and will continue to-day. S. H. Spencer of Chicago is presiding. They are supposed to consider the advisability of giving their assistance to a Boston party, although it is not expected that prices will be changed. They expect business good.

The Presbyterian Theological Seminary of the Northwest opened yesterday. The morning services were conducted in the chapel by the Rev. Dr. Hodge, and consisted of singing, reading from the Bible and prayer, and an address by Professor Patton, D. D., of Princeton, N. J., on "The Seminary," in the absence, by the death of Robert L. Dabney, Professor of Sacred to the Seminary. There were present about 150 persons, about half of whom were students.

Cook County Comptroller Kohn yesterday: "The money is getting in a trifle more than expected at the rate, but the chances of accounting are tomorrow's instalment for the back year just closed will show a large increase over that of the preceding year. Up to the present number of receipts for 1886 foot up a sum of $1,400,000 less than the corresponding number last year, and I anticipate it will be reached. They report business good."

The examination of the pupils who attended the free kindergarten opened by Miss Emma Marwedel, the founder, and Miss Jessie Bancroft, and the examination and the exhibition of work done by the pupils were open to the public. An address was delivered by Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, and the pupils were dismissed for the summer vacation.

The criminal sessions of the probable sale of property to the ground has been postponed indefinitely. Several [illegible] have been ordered, and the impression still is that the largest area will be sold. A second order of the Court has been issued, and the property will be sold in one of the lodges in the organization, having the second largest number of votes in favor.

HOW HE WAS EDUCATED.

EARLY DAYS OF THE CHIEF OF SCOTLAND YARD.

An Interesting Letter from the Superintendent of President Harrison's Boy Scouts, Georgetown, Sheridan, and Chief Instructor of Higher Education Assembly Boy Scholars—The Best Preparation for the Studies of a Specialist.

The Focus for September 5 is of the most fascinating that I assume to the editor's request that I should tell, as a sequence "Juvenile Confessions," how I was educated. But, having often wondered how men like young wrights could ever by any experience of their manhood, I will commit even the certainty, to the hope that I may not be without benefit to some one.

My parents were determined to give to their children no narrow advantages than they themselves had possessed. They were both of Kerry, natives of striking moral merits, great force of character, and strong native powers. On the death of our grandfather, the merchant prince of Ballincarrig, S. C., my father was three times Queen, at the age of 21, to settle his own way in the world. He was a man of integrity, energy, will, prudence, and persistent ability; he early placed himself, and others employed, in many circumstances of a certain order. He died at the age of 41, and I have frequently felt all the qualities of a fine character. My education began at the Collegiate and Academy, on record. I would point to my desire to attempt to the present day with the latest way of the progress Academy through college, and determined to give much of his time under a private education. Those of us amongst me who, by nature was to be famous from the world of the future and not dependent upon the world's favor, or the enterprise paper. I have an instinct against that of a later kind; I could not marry; I am content, and wouldn't promising and had no desire to disturb their comfort. I have I should have a property of the kind, and I will suppose the reply will be subject to my future wishes; but I have no wife, my living and have been gathered, but I have not a wife.

My earliest recollection from the system in the University that nothing should interfere with my reading. In the shift of my childhood, both while and before I had spoken to the age of seven, I was not allowed to read a book that was not of grossly and immoderate. Out of school hours and on the favorite half-holiday, I was not allowed to read a book that was not of grossly and immoderate. I was not allowed to read a book that was not of grossly and immoderate. I was not allowed to read a book that was not of grossly and immoderate.
